Lie with me in hindi 3gp format for .Q: Gradle not syncing repository when using 'include' I have what should be a very simple problem, but not sure how to solve it. I'm using Gradle 1.0-milestone-10. I have a fairly simple project that I would like to build using Eclipse and sync to the repository. I'm mostly just playing with the new features in Gradle, so I'm only using the 'include' functionality. All it does is import all my project dependencies. That's all. When I try to build, Gradle synchronizes just fine, and my dependencies are installed on my workspace. The problem comes when I try to sync the repository, and it fails with a missing dependency. Here is the build file: buildscript {

repositories { mavenCentral() } dependencies { classpath 'com.android.tools.build:gradle:0.9.+
' } } apply plugin: 'android' dependencies { compile fileTree(dir: 'libs', include: '*.jar') compile 'com.google.android.gms:playservices:3.1.36' } android { compileSdkVersion 16 buildToolsVersion '17' defaultConfig { minSdkVersion 16 targetSdkVersion 16 } } And here is the output: ... Executing tasks:
